

VIDEO CONFERENCING

THE ULTIMATE ALTERNATIVE TO ROAD SHOWS

When meeting in person is not an option, you can still meet face to face. An increasing number of companies are opting to purchase their own video conference equipment, or using the services of conveniently located video conference meeting rooms.

Video conferencing has come a long way and Chorus Call's sister company Compunetix has been one of the driving forces as a leading manufacturer of video conferencing bridges.

Whether you're looking at video conferencing as a means to save time and money, or as part of your corporate commitment to environmentally sustainable business practices, Chorus Call is ready to assist.

VIDEO BRIDGING

If you are trying to convene a call and the video conferencing systems are not connecting successfully, enlisting the help of a video bridge may be the answer. Bridging is also the solution when connecting with more points than your system is able to join or including a caller on a regular phone. And when joining more than two points by IP, a video bridge will ensure a higher quality connection.

Chorus Call offers this service using a state of the art high definition video bridge.

ROOM RENTALS

Our video experts are adept at sourcing the closest video conference room to anywhere your business takes you. Simply tell us which locations you would like to connect and we will make the arrangements, including confirming the reservations, pre-testing and bridging the call if required.

EQUIPMENT PURCHASES

Board room video conferencing equipment has come down in price considerably in recent years. If purchasing equipment is the route you want to take, Chorus Call has years of experience in the field. We would be happy to provide you or your IT team an overview of options available at various price points.
